PRESS RELEASE

Citrix Awards ONLC Training Center Instructor Top Honors – Rick Townsend is Top Citrix Certified Instructor

Orlando, Florida — January 28, 2007 — Citrix Education today announced that ONLC Training Centers instructor, Rick Townsend, had the highest student evaluation scores in 2006, earning him the title of Top Citrix Certified Instructor. The announcement was made at the annual Citrix Summit being held in Orlando, Florida.

Best Instructor in 2006

ONLC Training Centers CEO, Andy Williamson and Customer Service Manager, Joan Good were present when Townsend received the award. “We knew Rick was a great instructor. This award validates that he is the best in the country,” said Williamson.

“It was a great honor to receive the award. I was surprised,” said Townsend. What makes the award particularly meaningful is that many of Townsend’s students received training that was delivered using the company’s Remote Classroom Instruction (RCI) technology.

A Win for Remote Classroom Instruction

“The fact that Rick received this award when about a third of his students were sitting in remote classrooms says a lot about our RCI process,” continued Williamson. With RCI, students in low-enrollment locations link into the instructor-led class being held at another site. Special Internet conferencing, electronic whiteboards, cameras, and high-quality speakerphones are used to make the student feel like they are seamlessly integrated into the instructor’s class.

ONLC Training Centers is a Top Citrix Partner

“I work closely with the staff at Citrix Education to provide leading edge training at our seven Citrix Authorized locations throughout the Northeast and Mid-Atlantic Regions,” said Good. “Having Rick teach our classes is one of the reasons we won the award for the top-rated Citrix Authorized Learning Center earlier in 2006. With Rick’s award today, we are building an even stronger reputation as a top Citrix partner.”
